SOFT PLASTICS RECYCLING DIRECTORY

HDPE is accepted at most recycling centres in the world, as it is one of the easiest plastic polymers to recycle. HDPE (Type 2) plastics are widely accepted at recycling centers because recycling these materials can reduce the cost of products made from these plastics. Recycling a plastic is much more cost-efficient than creating it from scratch, therefore the cost of the materials use has a reflection on the overall cost of the product. Most recycling companies will collect HDPE products and take these to large facilities to be processed. HDPE is not biodegradable and can take centuries to decompose, so it is imperative that these bags and containers are recycled and used again. Recycling HDPE is more cost effective to produce a product from recycled HDPE than it is to manufacture 'virgin' plastic.
